INTRODUCTION

The Caribbean is home to a vibrant and dynamic music industry, driven by talented women who are shaping the future of the region's cultural and creative economy. This catalogue celebrates the exceptional women entrepreneurs, artists, managers, producers, and music professionals participating in the Caribbean Women in the Business of Music Market Access Programme at WOMEX 2026, showcasing their creativity, innovation, and global market readiness.

The catalogue also serves as a business promotion and networking tool, featuring the profiles of participating women-led music enterprises and supporting their engagement with industry stakeholders at WOMEX 2026 and beyond.

We invite you to discover the remarkable women featured in these pages and explore the diverse sounds, stories, and business opportunities they bring to WOMEX 2026.

ABOUT THE CARIBBEAN DEVELOPMENT BANK

The Caribbean Development Bank (CDB) is a regional financial institution committed to advancing economic growth, sustainable development, and poverty reduction across its nineteen (19) borrowing member countries. Through financing, technical assistance, policy support, and capacity-building initiatives, CDB works to strengthen the Caribbean's competitiveness and promote inclusive opportunities for people and businesses throughout the region.

Recognising the significant contribution of the cultural and creative industries to economic growth, innovation, employment, and export development, CDB supports initiatives that foster entrepreneurship, market access, and business growth within the sector. Among these initiatives are the Cultural and Creative Industries Innovation Fund and the SheTrades Caribbean Hub, two programmes within CDB's Private Sector Division that are jointly implementing the Caribbean Women in the Business of Music Market Access Programme for WOMEX 2026.

The Cultural and Creative Industries Innovation Fund (CIIF)

Established in 2017, CIIF is a multi-donor fund dedicated to supporting the development of the Caribbean's cultural and creative industries and enhancing the sector's global competitiveness. Through technical assistance and grant funding, CIIF invests in key creative subsectors, including music, audiovisual industries, fashion and contemporary design, festivals and carnivals, and visual arts.

SheTrades Caribbean Hub

The SheTrades Caribbean Hub, established in 2023 through a collaboration between CDB and the International Trade Centre (ITC), serves as a regional resource centre for women-led businesses. The Hub provides technical and financial assistance designed to help women entrepreneurs increase their participation in international trade, expand export and investment opportunities, and access new markets.

ABOUT THE CARIBBEAN WOMEN IN MUSIC MARKET ACCESS PROGRAMME FOR WOMEX 2026

The Caribbean Women in Music Market Access Programme is a joint initiative of the Cultural and Creative Industries Innovation Fund (CIIF) and the SheTrades Caribbean Hub, programmes of the Caribbean Development Bank.

The programme is designed to strengthen the competitiveness of women-led music businesses and support their entry into international markets, with a focus on participation in the World Music Expo (WOMEX) 2026 in Gran Canaria, Spain.

The initiative aims to enhance export readiness and market access capacity by equipping participants with the skills, knowledge, and networks required to operate in global music industry environments.

Participants represent a cross-section of the music business ecosystem, including managers, producers, songwriters, publishers, and music technology professionals.

Programme Structure

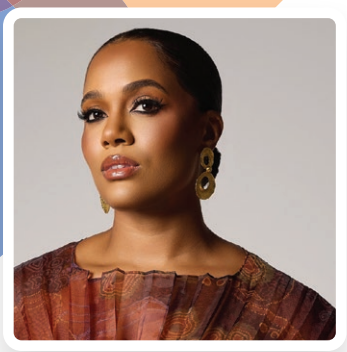

An integrated approach to market access, combining Capacity Building, Market Access Preparation and WOMEX 2026 Participation. Participants featured in this catalogue received training and a select group gained access to the WOMEX 2026 trade fair, conference, and networking platforms.
